EXPEDITION TO

Antarctica

Featuring the

Deluxe M.S. L'AUSTRAL

with

Professor Bruce Marsh

January 17 to 30, 2013

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

Dear Alumni & Friends:

“Everything wears an aspect of unreality,” Ernest Shackleton wrote. “Icebergs hang upside-down in the sky, the land appears as layers of silvery or golden cloud, cloud banks look like land, and icebergs masquerade as islands.”

Retrace the sea-lanes traveled by the storied explorers Ernest Shackleton, Roald Amundsen and Robert Falcon Scott as they sought out the final frontier of “The White Continent” on this extraordinary fourteen-day program featuring a nine-night, Small-Ship Cruise aboard the state-of-the-art, Deluxe M.S. L’AUSTRAL, launched in 2011. The ship is staffed with an expedition team of expert naturalists who will guide you on excursions aboard sturdy Zodiac craft to explore the intricate ecosystems and marvelous nuances of the abundant wildlife found ashore, especially penguins and seals, who are unafraid of humans.

This once-in-a-lifetime, comprehensive program features elegant accommodations, all meals, all excursions, an optimal cruising experience and has sold out year after year. Space is limited to 200 passengers, so I urge you to place your reservation soon, while Early Booking Savings and space are available!

We are so fortunate to have as guest lecturer Professor Bruce Marsh, of the Morton K. Blaustein Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences, who has taught at Johns Hopkins since 1974.

Guest Lecturer

Professor Bruce Marsh has made nine expeditions to Antarctica and for 20 years has studied and mapped the geology of the McMurdo Dry Valleys, proven to be the best exposed magmatic system on Earth. His specialty is magma dynamics which relates to the life cycle of volcanoes, the origin of continental land masses, and the physical development of Earth as a planet. Dr. Marsh has been described as “a central figure in magma dynamics, a field of which he is the principal architect.”

In addition to a distinguished career, he enjoys many interests from antique cars, to carpentry, fly fishing and the history of exploration, and is writing a book about the history of Antarctic Exploration and the challenges of reaching the South Pole.

Wildlife Conservation

The unique international Antarctic Treaty protects Antarctica's wildlife and its natural habitats and provides a guide for visitors to this great continent, where no country has sovereignty.

To protect the fragile Antarctic environment, all travelers will go ashore in small groups, so as not to over visit rookeries, disturb nesting sites or disrupt research. All visitors will be asked to take—and leave—nothing ashore.

naturalists will present insightful lectures to prepare you for your first landing in Antarctica.

Cruising Antarctica

Tuesday, January 22 to Sunday, January 27

The ship cruises below the 60th parallel to the outer shores and islands of the Antarctic Peninsula, the Earth's last frontier. Here, explore Earth's most pristine wilderness, where towering mountains of ice and lava create precipitous coastlines and islands, and constantly changing patterns of ice stretch as far as the eye can see. In this seemingly harsh environment, a vast array of marine and wildlife flourishes, including millions of penguins, countless seabirds and thousands of seals and whales. From spectacular volcanic topography and majestic glaciers to fascinating wildlife and historic outposts, this itinerary reveals the fascinating highlights of the following destinations for the complete Antarctica experience.

Please note that the ship's cruising pattern and destinations are dependent on weather, ice and sea conditions and are subject to change.

One of the smallest but most beautiful South Shetland Islands, Half Moon Island, is a crescent-shaped isle known for its craggy volcanic rock formations and tranquil lagoons. It is also the site of Camara Station, a base staffed by Argentine biologists monitoring regional wildlife. Observe the antics of the island's colony of chinstrap penguins and enjoy the lingering twilight of the Antarctic summer.

Deception Island is actually the rim of a massive dormant volcano crater that encircles a lake known as Port Foster.

The ship enters Port Foster through dramatic Neptune's Bellows, a sublime harbor ringed by snowcapped peaks and sheer cliffs. In Pendulum Cove, see the steaming, geothermally heated waters of the Antarctic. Observe the amazing colony of a quarter of one million chinstrap penguins at Baily Head. Then walk along the black sand beaches of Telefon Bay to nearby craters, which offer fascinating insight into the volcanic activity that created the island and played a pivotal role in the natural history of the region.

In Paradise Bay, awesome cliffs of ice descend from the surrounding mountains into the floating iceberg-laden waters along the western coast of the Antarctic Peninsula. Named by 19th-century whalers who sought shelter in its coves, Paradise Bay is an ideal sanctuary for marine wildlife including humpback whales, crabeater seals and Cape petrels. Listen for the low rumbling of Rudolf Glacier as it calves chunks of ice into Neko Harbor, named for an early 20th-century whaling boat. The harbor is surrounded by soaring glaciers and snow-covered mountains and is one of the most dramatic and spectacular sights in Antarctica. Here, make your first "continental landing" in Antarctica. Cruise through breathtaking, glacier-lined Neumayer Channel to Port Lockroy. Originally constructed in 1944 by an eight-man team as an intelligence post for British espionage during World War II, Port Lockroy was converted into a whaling station and scientific base in the 1950s. It is nestled among glistening mountain peaks as high as 6,000 feet, and the surrounding grounds are populated by blue-eyed shags

In contrast to sociable Adélie penguins, who congregate in large colonies, the leopard seal cherishes his solitude and independence.

A visit to Antarctica offers an unparalleled opportunity to get an up-close view of chinstrap penguins in their natural habitat.

and gentoo penguins. Gain insight into the lives of past explorers at the British Antarctic Survey Museum and send a postcard with an Antarctica postmark from the official British Post Office. Just beyond Port Lockroy, enjoy an excursion to the rocky shores of Jougla Point on Wiencke Island.

Weighing up to 50 tons, this breaching humpback whale migrates to Antarctic waters to feed during the austral summer.

Experience this rare opportunity to view the nearly intact skeleton of a large whale, and see large colonies of gentoo penguins and kelp gulls.

Flanked by sheer cliffs of towering glaciers between the Antarctic Peninsula and Booth Island, Lemaire Channel offers views of seven majestic miles of mountains and wildlife combined with fascinating patterns of ice floes. Call at Petermann Island, the southernmost point of your journey, and watch its thriving rookeries of Adélie and gentoo penguins and blue-eyed shags.

Enter the Weddell Sea and spot the enormous tabular icebergs that have calved from the Larsen Ice Shelf. See Brown Bluff's 2,450-foot-high, rust-colored cliffs jutting into the Antarctic Sound. Observe the area's flourishing colony of friendly Adélie penguins, who may approach you for an up-close encounter.

Cruising Drake Passage/ Cape Horn

Monday, January 28

Relax and reflect onboard as the ship turns north and crosses the Drake Passage. Enjoy lively, informative discussions with the ship's naturalists. Watch for endangered albatross and the many different species of petrels as you cruise across the Antarctic Convergence and past Cape Horn, the most southerly point of South America and a milestone on the world's trade routes from the 18th century until the opening of the Panama Canal in 1914. Attend the Captain's farewell reception this evening.

Your Expedition Team

The expedition team aboard the M.S. L'AUSTRAL are seasoned experts and naturalists who have studied and traveled extensively in the most remote regions of the world. Their areas of expertise span marine biology, ornithology, ecology, geology, glaciology, conservation and environmental education, history and photography. The team's collaborative efforts, experience, enthusiasm for sharing their knowledge and a particular interest in the world's ecosystems make them exceptionally well-suited to lead your Expedition to Antarctica.

American Exploration of Antarctica

The intrepid deeds of such famed European and British explorers of Antarctica as Roald Amundsen, Robert Falcon Scott and Ernest Shackleton have long been recounted in gripping personal tales and history books. Americans also played a significant role in the exploration of Antarctica. Foremost among them was Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd. Scion of a distinguished Virginia family, he led the 1928-30 U.S. Antarctic expedition and, in 1929, made the first overflight of the South Pole. Byrd later led three additional expeditions to Antarctica and named a large portion of the continent Marie Byrd Land after his wife.

Another American prominent in the exploration of the South Polar region was Lincoln Ellsworth. This Chicago native made the first flight across Antarctica in 1935. In the course of his journey, he discovered the continent's loftiest mountain range, later named in his honor.
