To the Class of 2004:

This is a special year for undergraduates at Johns Hopkins, because 2004 marks the 125th anniversary of the first graduating class of undergraduates. How things have changed in 125 years! The undergraduate Class of 1879 consisted of four young white men from Baltimore. The Class of 2004 is vastly larger and more diverse in just about every respect imaginable.

Yet, despite the obvious differences, there is a common thread that runs throughout undergraduate life at Johns Hopkins over the years.

I have now had eight years to observe the classes as they have come through, and I think I have an inkling of what the essence of a Hopkins student is. I believe that what characterizes you is your passion. You really care about at least one thing enough to devote your time, energy and zeal to the pursuit of excellence in it—whether it be a scholarly or scientific interest, one of the arts, a sport, political activism, or a social cause. There are one or two or three big things in your life that spark your interest, keep you focused, and rocket you to peak performance. That's what makes Hopkins students so impressive.

The four young men who graduated in 1879 went on to successful lives in the professions and academia. Two of them remained at Hopkins for graduate work (at the time, the only university where one could do graduate work as we know it) and earned their PhDs, with one staying here on the faculty. The unusually large proportion of undergraduates who go on for graduate or professional study is something that has distinguished Hopkins students throughout the years.

Yet, as important as that is, there is much more to what sets you apart. An intensity and a relentless curiosity and creativity drive you to innovate and to excel. When you want something—a program or organization or publication or research opportunity—and it doesn't already exist, you take the initiative and make it happen. I am amazed . . . and impressed.

There must be something about undergraduate culture at Hopkins that has long both attracted and fostered the qualities of intellectual vitality, autonomy and self-direction that I see in you. Perhaps these qualities come from imbibing the atmosphere of a university that, from its founding, was dedicated to research and advanced study. No matter what the source, they are qualities that we certainly try to cultivate with such programs as the Provost's Undergraduate Research Awards and the Wilson Fellowships. And they are what make you uniquely winsome.

So congratulations on completing your undergraduate career. I hope that you have had many opportunities, both in and out of the classroom, to pursue your passion relentlessly. Thank you for being with us, and please come back soon, and frequently.

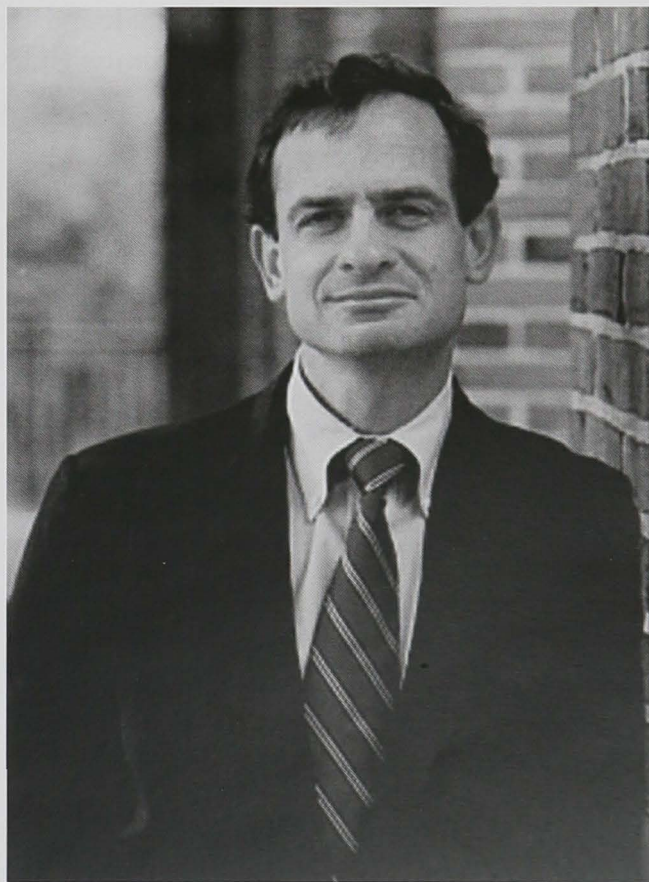

Sincerely,
William R. Brody
President

Congratulations, Class of 2004!

Your achievements at Johns Hopkins toward the diplomas you now hold have been remarkable, and you leave a lasting legacy with the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences.

With each graduating class, it seems the bar is set a little higher for the next; yours is no exception. Your academic endeavors were matched in enthusiasm and commitment by those you pursued outside of class: the organizations you created, joined, or led, the athletic and social activities you took part in, and the service you provided to the community, whether locally or internationally. All of these helped further the tradition created by the first students of Johns Hopkins and, for that matter, by our first president himself, Daniel Coit Gilman, of improving society through the creation of ideas.

Like many people, I look back on my college years as a time of tremendous personal growth, one that shaped, in large part, the person I am today. I hope you will remember your four years here just as fondly, with just as much appreciation for the way your experiences here helped you grow. The success you achieved at Hopkins bodes exceedingly well for the future; I am confident that you leave us not only with the knowledge and skills you will need to excel in a given field, but with the desire to make a difference in the world and an awareness of the responsibility we all have to do so.

Sincerely,
Daniel Weiss MA '82, PhD '92
James B. Knapp Dean
Zanzvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences

To the Class of 2004

Congratulations to you all!

I am really pleased to be able add a few words to the Hullabaloo 2004 and to wish the graduates of both the Whiting School of Engineering and the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences all the very best as you move on to new ventures and undertake new challenges.

The faculty here at Hopkins are rightly very proud of what you have accomplished here and we are confident that you will achieve even more once you leave our classes, laboratories, and seminars. Hopkins is a rigorous and demanding place and it teaches you, our wonderfully talented students, to think critically, to be creative, to be able to address a broad range of issues and to continue to learn throughout your lives.

I trust that all of you will look back on terrific times of intellectual engagement, having fun and doing new things. The friendships you have made and your diverse interactions have helped to create a vibrancy and dynamism to our community. But we have all also faced tough challenges too. I am proud of the manner in which you as students supported each other after Chris Elser's death and in the articulate and insightful manner in which you were able to express yourselves at the Tuesday memorial for Chris in front of Gilman Hall. This is a community of outstanding people. You should be proud of yourselves.

As you leave us for new places, new friends, and new adventures, I encourage you keep in contact with the friends you have made here and with those whom you leave behind. Please keep in touch with the professors who inspired you, the administrators who made it possible for you to do special things and the Johns Hopkins University which will, for the rest of your lives, be a source of pride for you.

Take care and go well.

Sincerely
Andrew S. Douglas
Interim Dean of the Whiting
School of Engineering.

To the Class of 2004

It's hard to believe that time has passed by so quickly. It seems just a short time ago that I was welcoming many of you to campus. My hope is that your time here has helped you grow both intellectually and personally. Just as you looked forward to beginning college those short years ago, I encourage you to look with renewed enthusiasm to the journey now ahead of you.

It has been an honor to have known and talked with so many of you. One of my favorite memories is of watching our graduates walk across the stage at Commencement Ceremonies. Seeing the pride and accomplishment, as well as a bit of relief, in your smiles is indeed a fulfilling moment for me.

I offer my heartfelt congratulations to each of you as you pursue possibilities beyond Johns Hopkins University, and wish you the best. I look forward to hearing from you in the future.

Sincerely yours,

Susan K. Boswell
Dean of Student Life

Forever in Our Hearts

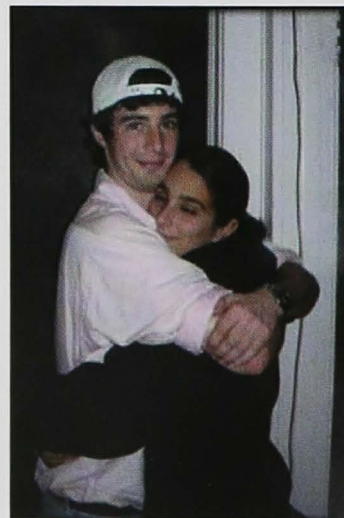

Christopher B. Elser

May 29, 1983 - April 18, 2004

Chris was someone who once you met you would never forget. He was upbeat, personable, very outgoing and always ready to meet new people and take on new adventures.

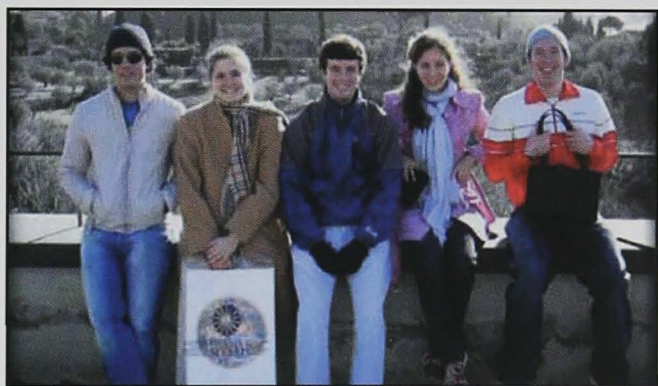

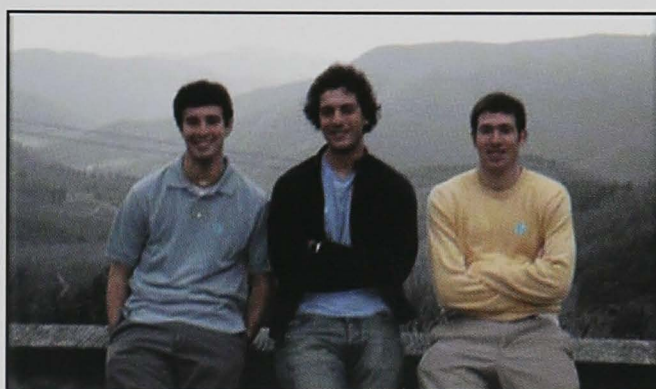

Chris is remembered by many as a great friend who was well-liked and respected. He never hesitated to stand up for what he thought was right, and he was compassionate, dedicated, and loyal. Chris was thought of highly by faculty and students alike. He made a tremendous difference to us all. Chris was, is and always will be our friend.

Remember him. Always take Christopher with you as you go through life, and live full, happy and productive lives. ~Elser Family

Being around him made me a happier, better person, and for that, I will NEVER forget Chris. He will be forever missed but never forgotten. ~Teryn

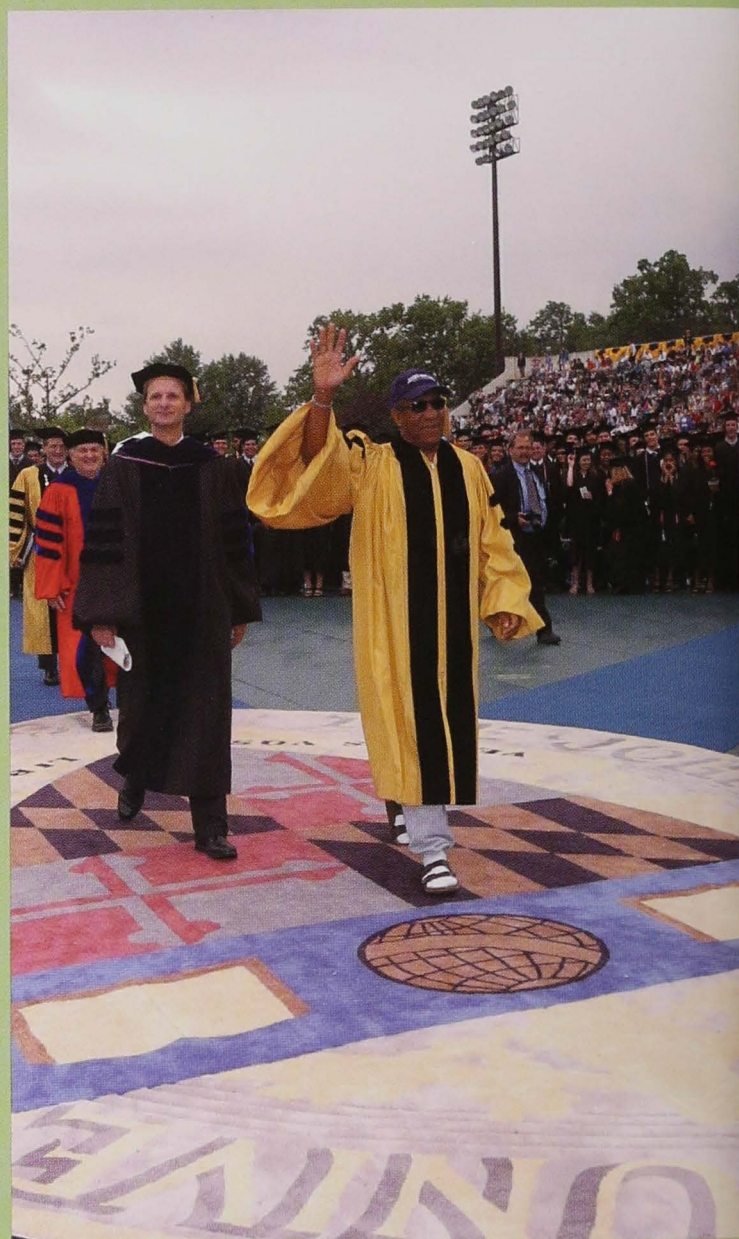

He was the kind of friend who always had a kind word to say and always made everyone feel special. ~Ashley West

You will never be forgotten...

Bill Cosby was a treat for all the graduates and the families as he was the honored guest speaker at the Commencement ceremony.

COMMENCEMENT 2004

With families overlooking proudly, this year's graduates await the official announcement of their name, signaling the end of their undergraduate studies.

As this door closes in their lives, one more opens. Good luck to Johns Hopkins University graduating class of 2004!

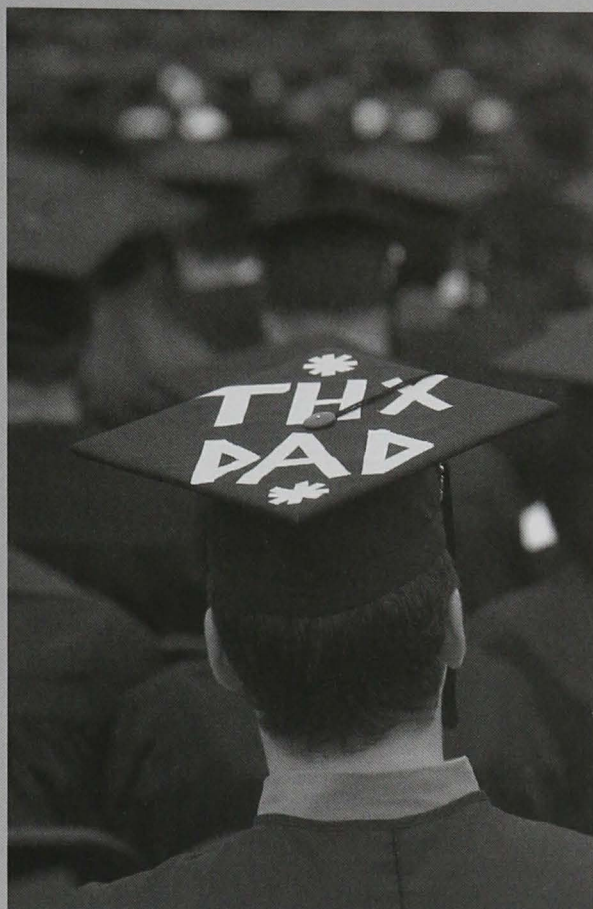

Due to scheduling conflicts, the Blue Jays baseball team was unable to attend their class's commencement ceremony as they were proudly representing JHU in one of their games. To properly honor the men's accomplishments at Hopkins, they had a separate ceremony.

Together the graduating baseball team members proudly participate in their commencement ceremony. Although unable to attend the class ceremony, these men were glad to be sharing this recognition with their teammates and friends who they have spent the past four years with, growing in knowledge and in life.

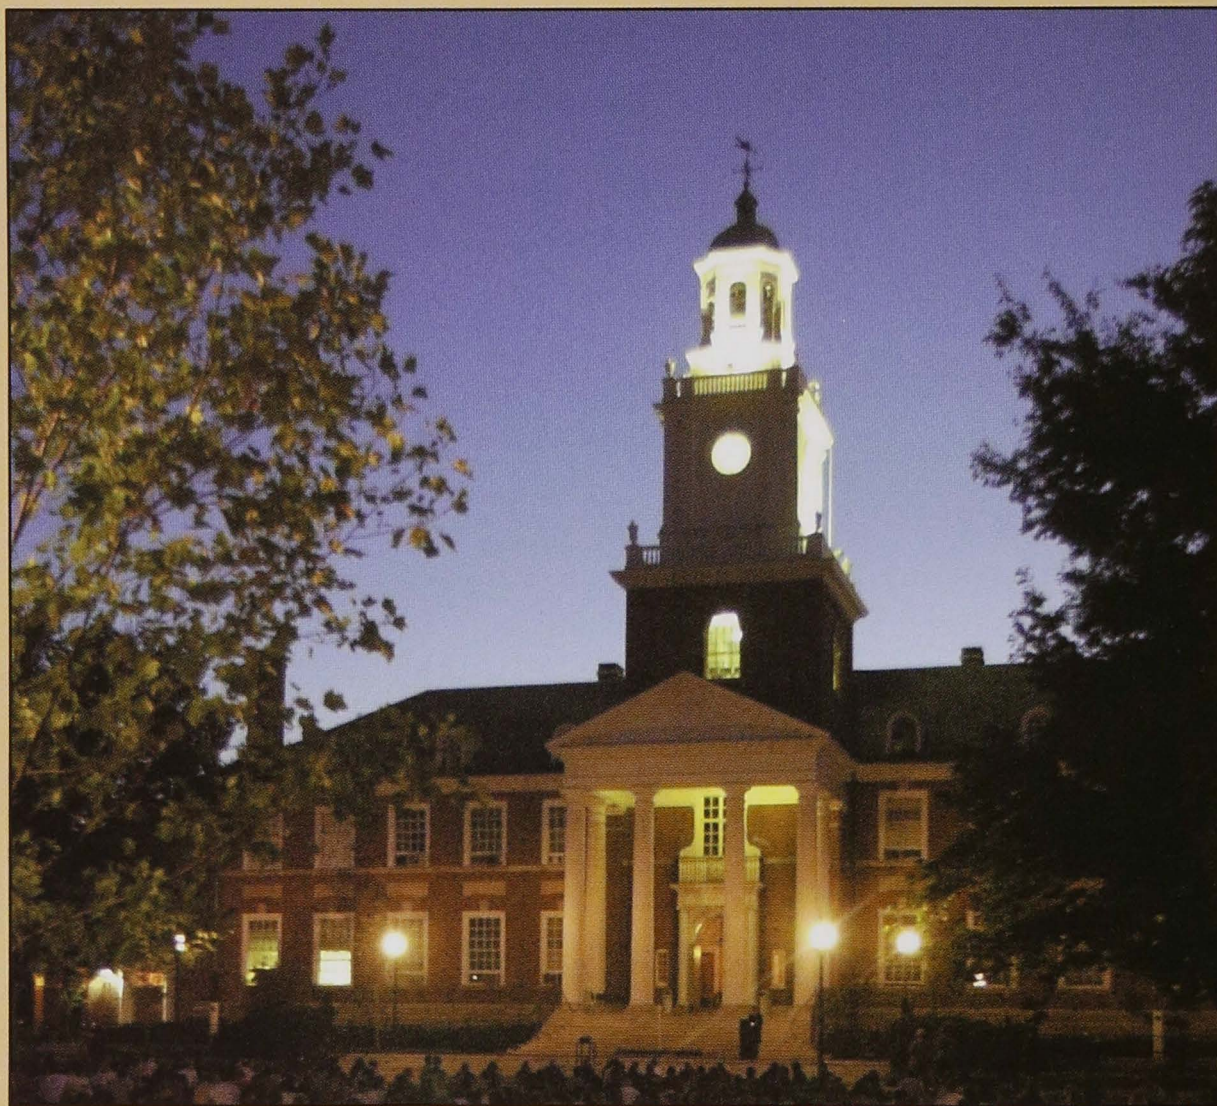

Below: The graduates stood tall and proud on the day of their commencement and rightfully so, for the accomplishment of completing their undergraduate studies at Johns Hopkins University is one that deserves honoring.

Above: One Hopkins graduate clearly displays his gratitude to those who deserve it most in the lives of JHU students, the parents and families who send their unconditional love and support.

The Allnighters

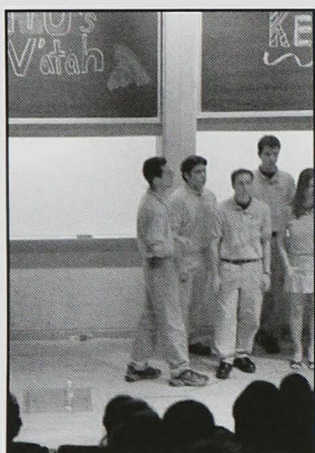

The JHU All Nighters prove themselves over and over again to be one of the most talented group of men on the campus. The all male acapella group is known for their jovial temperament and easygoing personalities but the final products of their labors makes evident the dedication and devotion these men have to performing. The talent displayed by the group is exceptional and is obvious through the fans and admiring audiences at all of the performances.

Practice, Practice, Practice! Sometimes it feels like it will never end. But after it all, the Allnighters sound amazing! Whether it is by the piano, or acapella the guys always sound amazing!

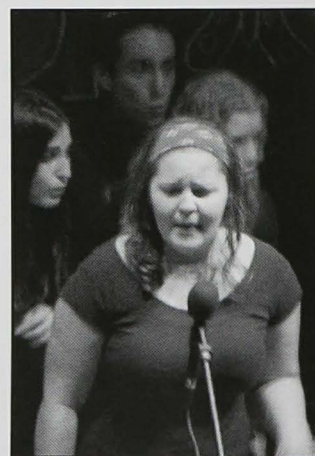

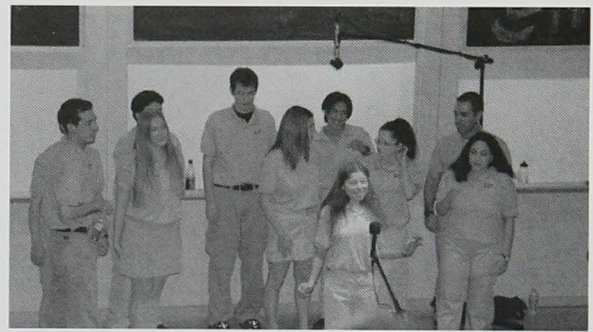

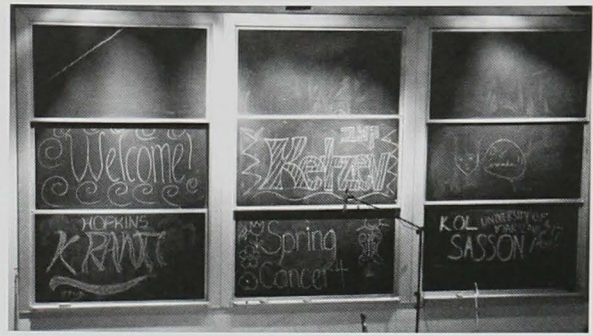

Ketzev

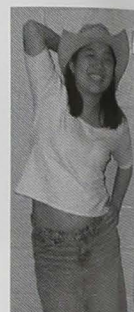

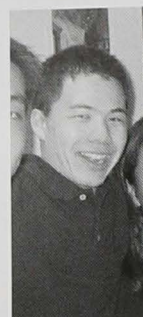

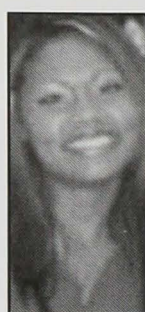

This unique group of undergraduates comprise the campuses only Jewish A Capella group. They have been to a variety of venues and campuses to perform on the East Coast, everytime making JHU proud to be represented by these students.

The accomplished group employs English, Hebrew. and Yiddish songs in their performances to add a wonderful blend of culture and language.

Student Groups

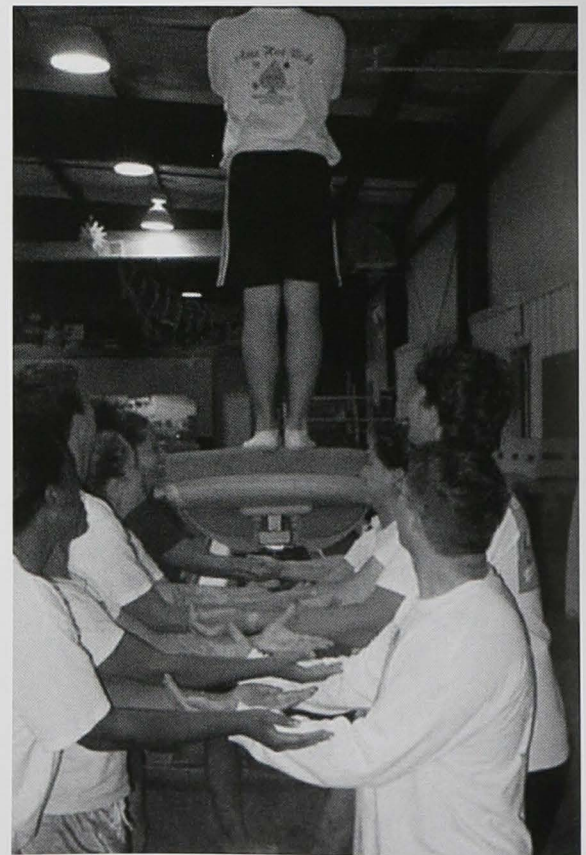

Orientation 2003

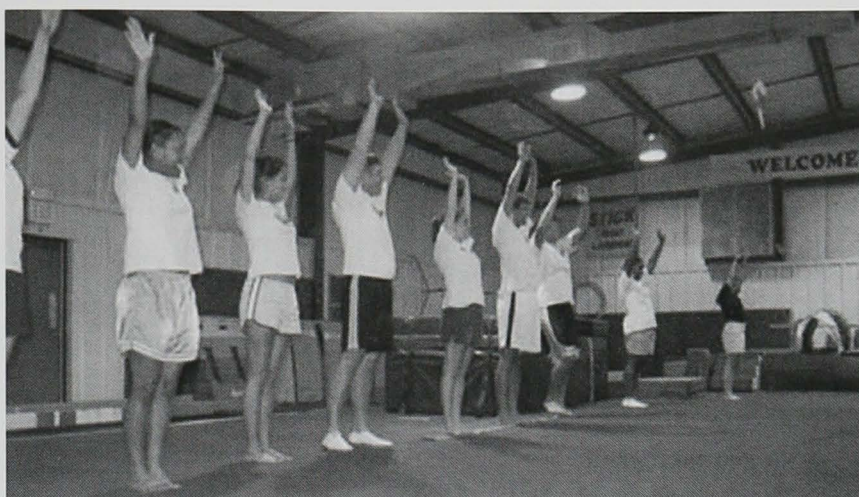

Strong bonds and great trust are already being formed early in the year at Orientation thanks to the great staff.

Friendships and memories that will last a lifetime are forged during this week of introduction.

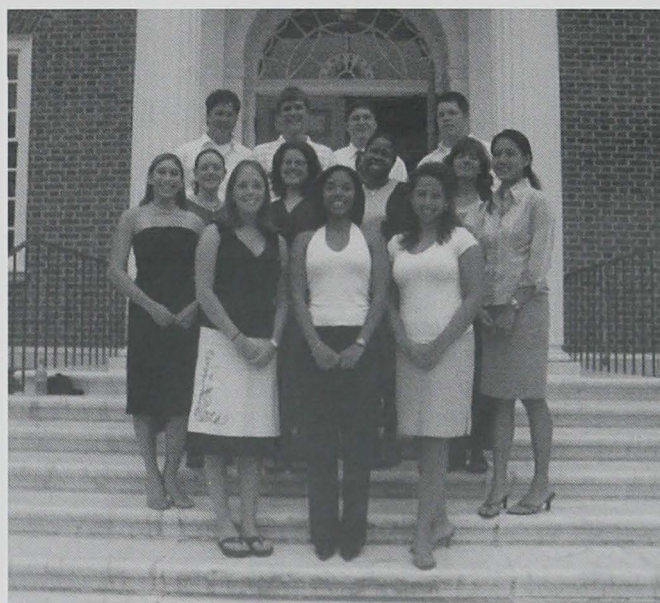

The amazing group of current undergrads who acted as Orientation staff remember when they were in the same position as the incoming freshmen.

The staff's preparation and dedication were apparent throughout the week, yet albeit a great deal of work was required, the JHU students had a blast in the process!

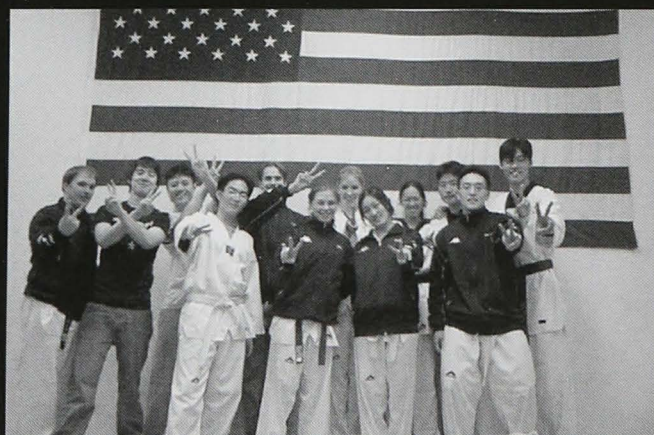

Many upperclassmen had an incredibly significant role in making Orientation 2003 the great success that it was!

Tai Kwon Do

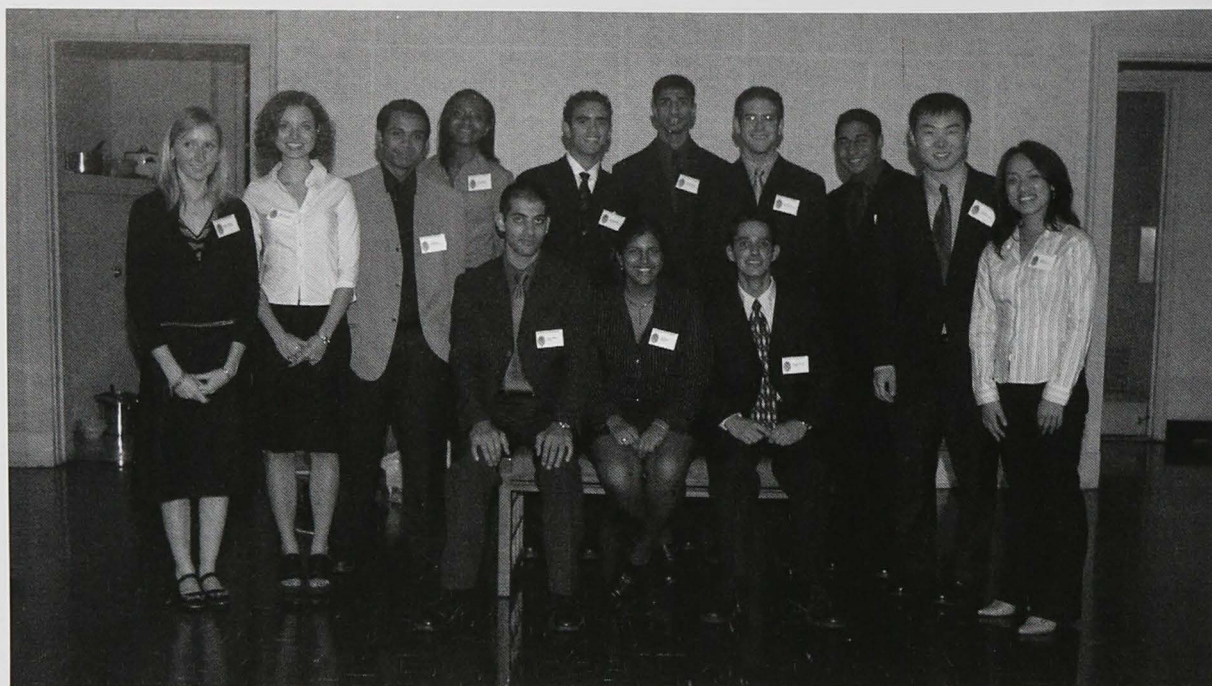

A great sense of unity is obvious as the participants pose together.

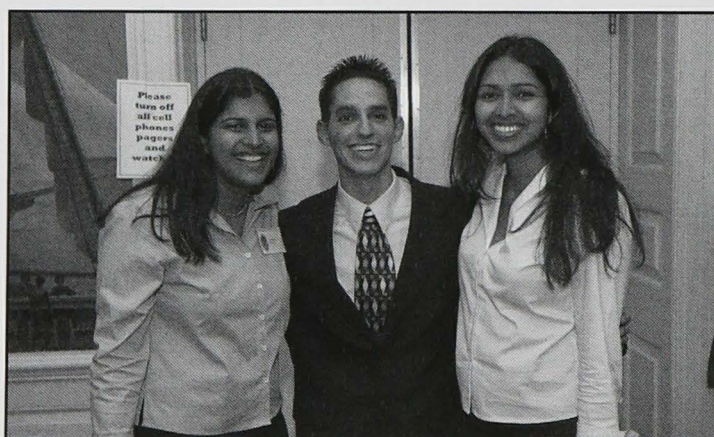

Hard work and discipline are key to success in this physically and mentally challenging activity. Despite occasional struggles however, the participants have a wonderful time!

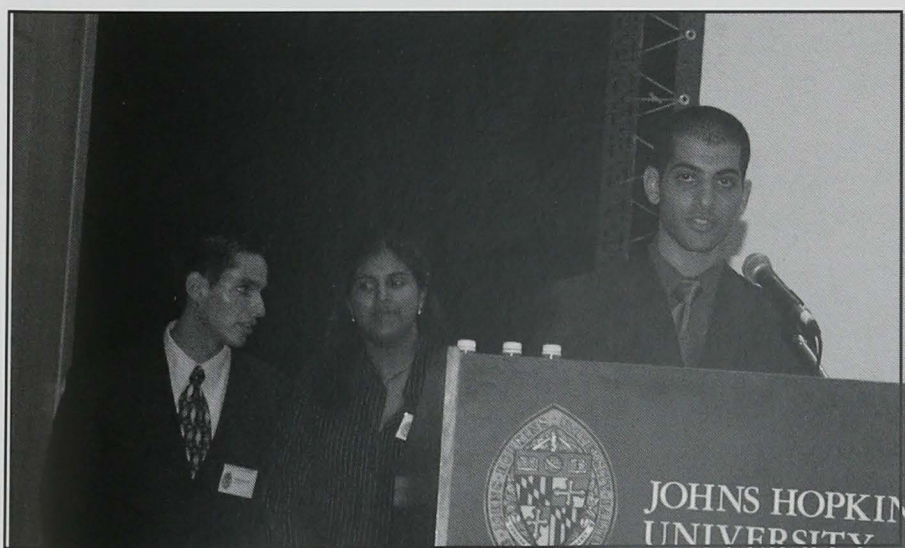

It takes quite a team to put together the MSE Symposium, but together all the members and staff above outdid themselves once again this year!

Despite the hours of hard work and the needed maturity of these Hopkins students, they seem to always have fun together and take pride in their great accomplishment of another great year of Symposium guests.

Milton S. Eisenhower Symposium

It is quite a daunting challenge for the MSE Symposium members to plan another year of extraordinary speakers! However, this year was no different than any others as the students provided world-renowned speakers for the great enjoyment of the audiences.

HOPKINS 4K

Endurance and stamina are qualities each one of these bicyclists possess. They show their athleticism and their physical strength during this year's 4K race at Hopkins.

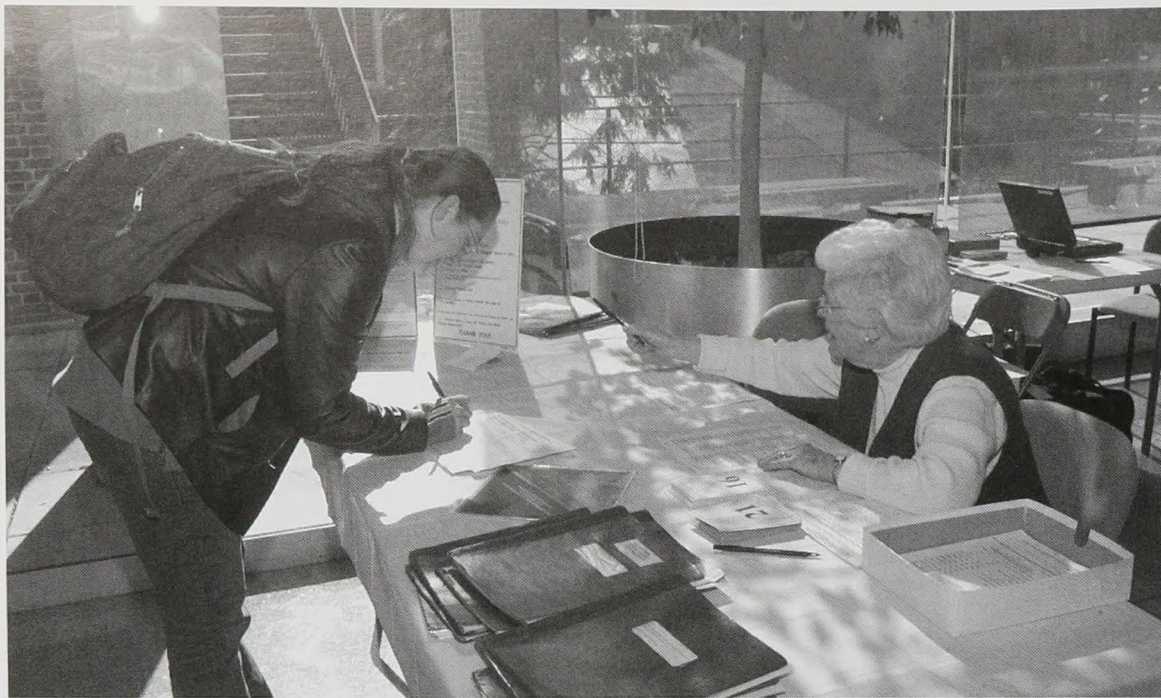

The participants pose together before the ride they have worked so hard to prepare for.

Time is of the essence! The riders can not wait for the race to begin.

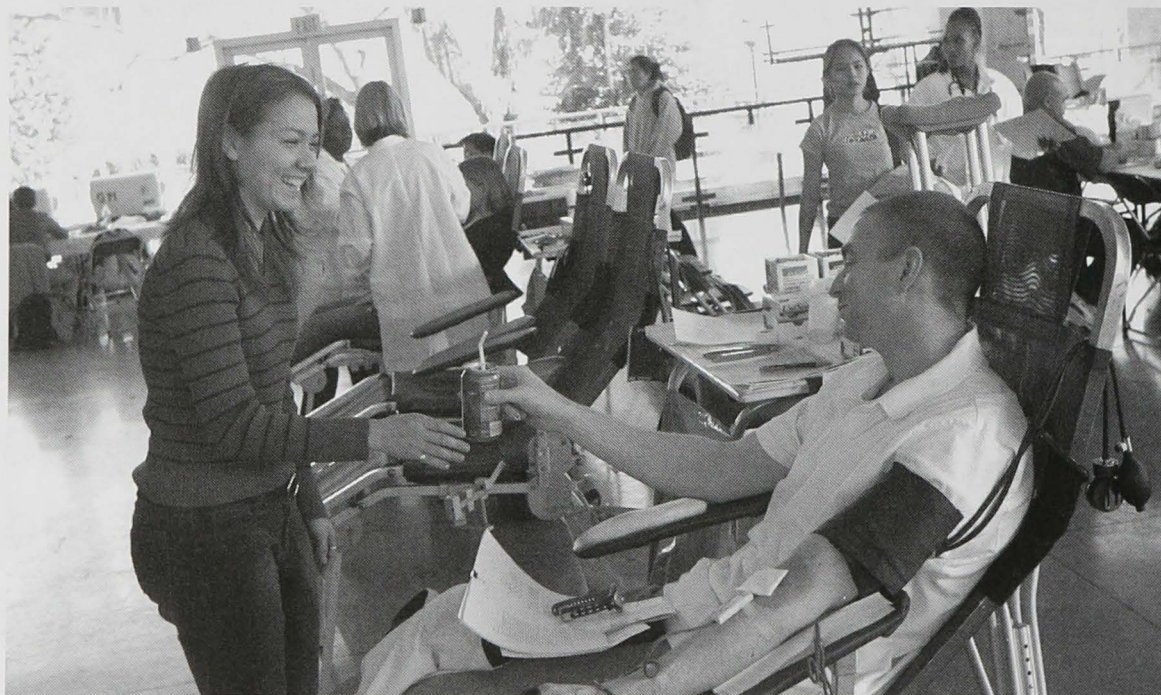

The grueling journey begins as the riders push their bodies to the physical limits.

Thanks to the volunteer staff and the selfless donors, this year's blood drive will save countless lives.

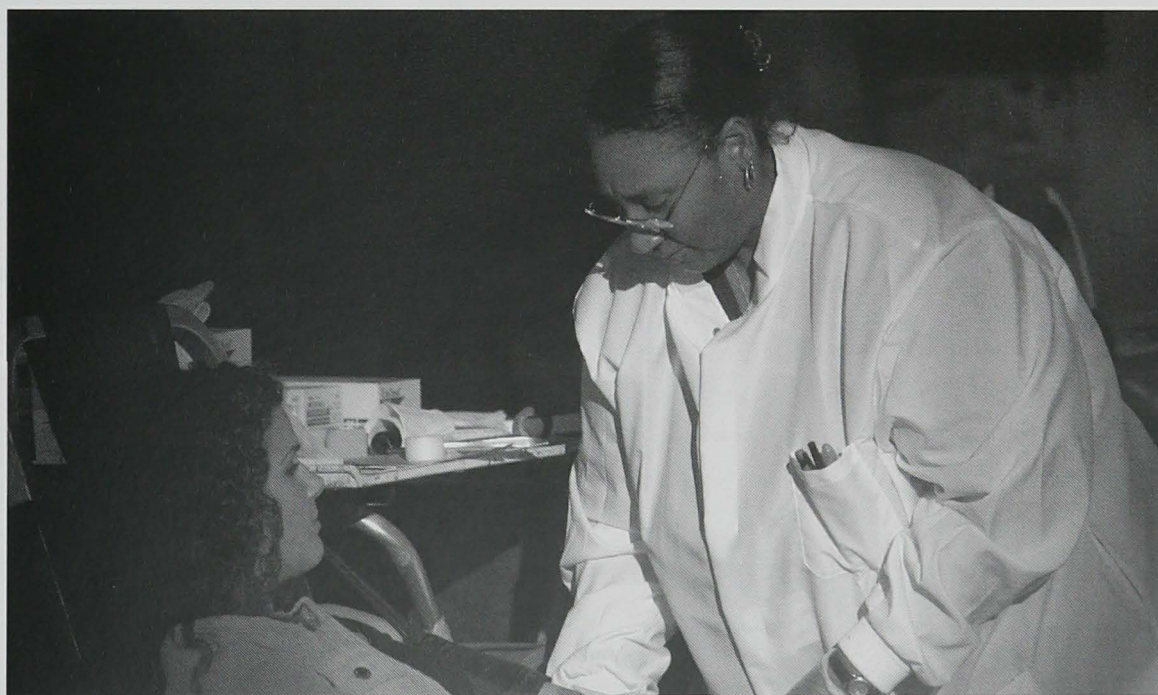

American Red Cross Blood Drive

What a valiant display of self-less compassion! Giving blood this year may have been a scary endeavor for some, but it pays off to think how grateful one needy patient will be to receive the donor blood.

Despite the smiling faces, the apprehension could be felt in the room at this year's blood drive. After all, even brave souls aren't fond of needles!

The American Red Cross's annual blood drive at Hopkins was extremely successful this year, and we have our own students and staff to thank. The dedicated Red Cross workers are also to be thanked for their time and effort.

The Barnstormers

Freshman ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ Move In Day

With a large and incredibly helpful staff, the nervous freshmen were quickly and smoothly moved into the dorms to ease the stress of one part of the orientation process.

Organization was a key aspect as the freshmen were moved in completely with hardly any glitches! Thanks to some hard work and preparation it was a successful day!

With the help of some current Hopkins students, parents were directed to the correct areas and all the luggage was appropriately placed. Their help during move in day was immense!

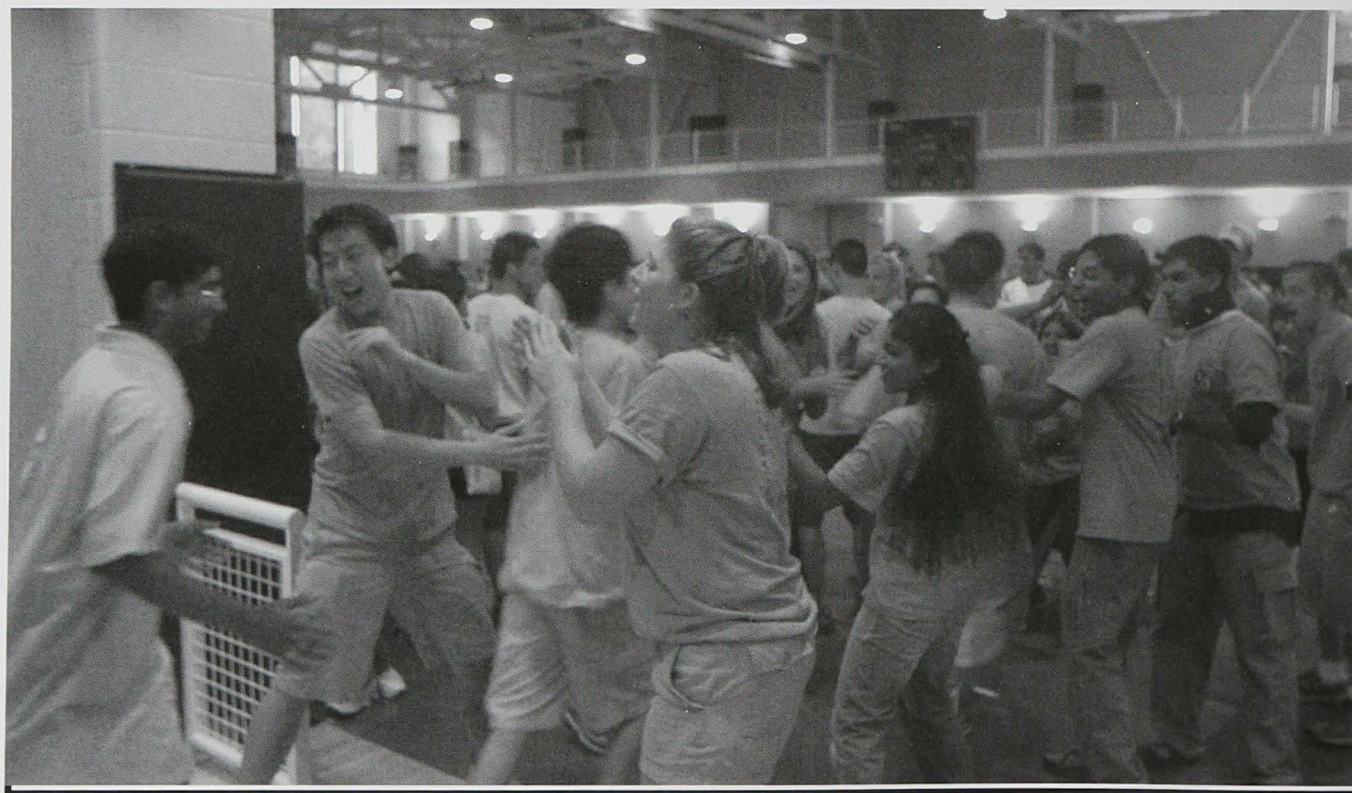

President Brody made appearances throughout the day, fashioning all the latest in new technology. The scooters were quite a hit and formed many discussions among parents and students alike.

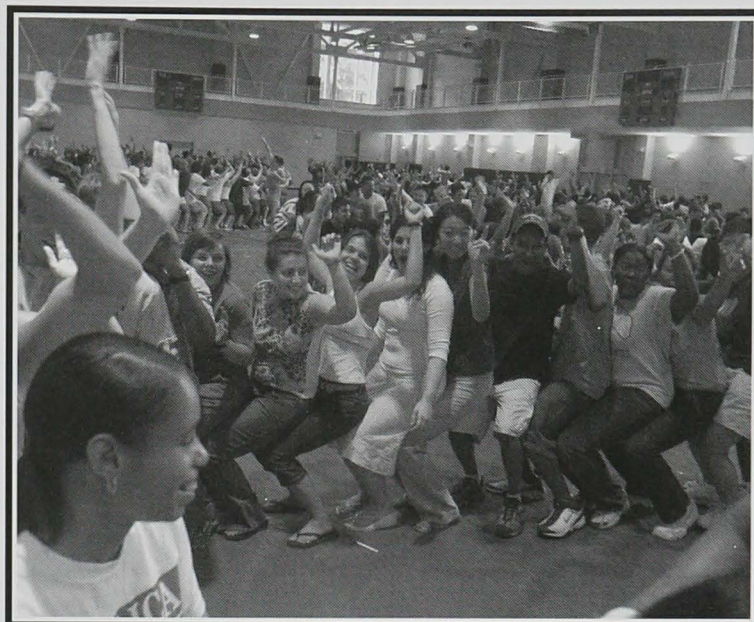

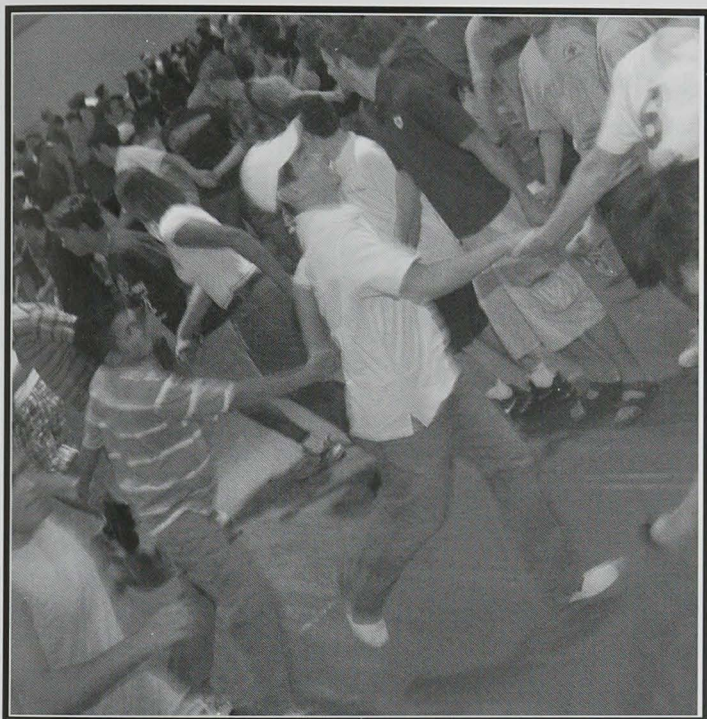

Freshman

Playfair

Among a sea of new faces, the incoming freshmen will soon begin a new chapter of their lives, creating bonds and memories that will forever be remembered.

New friendships are quickly forged during the playfair and orientation activities. The fear and anxiety felt by most of the new freshmen vanishes quickly and the fun begins during the icebreaker games!

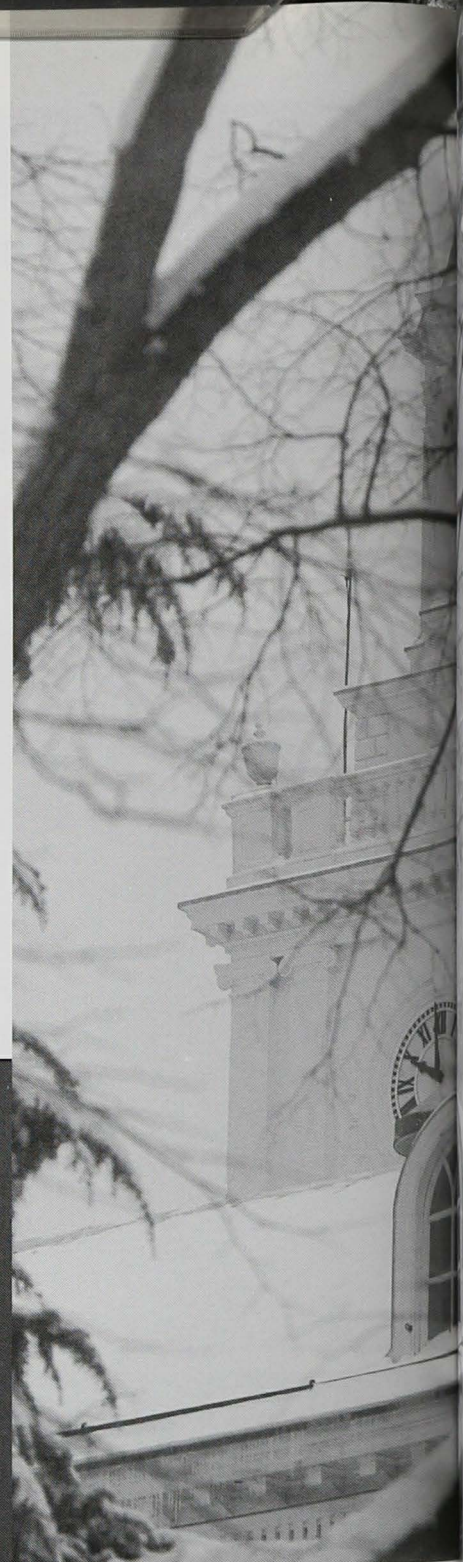

A view of the incoming class of 2008 depicts the new bonds created between the students. Despite a physically and emotionally draining experience of moving into JHU, the freshmen are enjoying themselves a great deal. It looks like its going to be a good year for all!

SNOW!!!

Another Maryland winter at Hopkins meant another season of snow storms. The campus was transformed into a picturesque scene of beauty covered in a blanket of fresh white powder. Almost all students, no matter what kind of topography or climate their home state possesses, found comfort and pleasure in the surreal setting they found themselves in after arising to see the white covering. For some it meant anticipation towards a day of frolics in the snow, and for others it meant relief from an exam that may just be cancelled!

Childhood memories are renewed as Hopkins students enjoy a romp in the wintry mess.

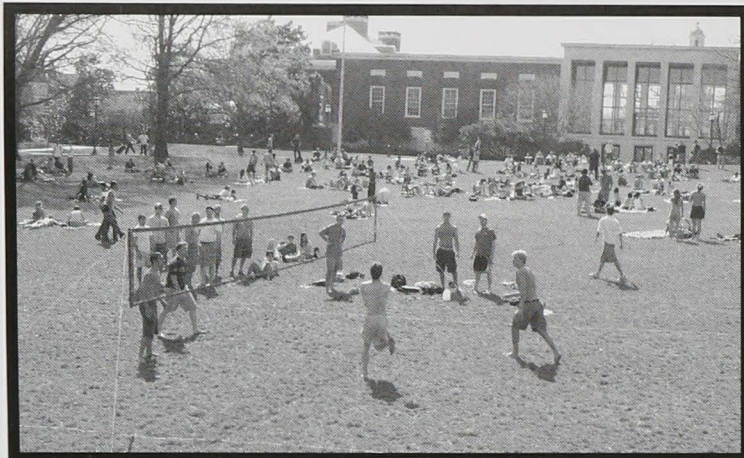

The activities among the students varied on such snow days, and no matter how odd some may have been, everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves!

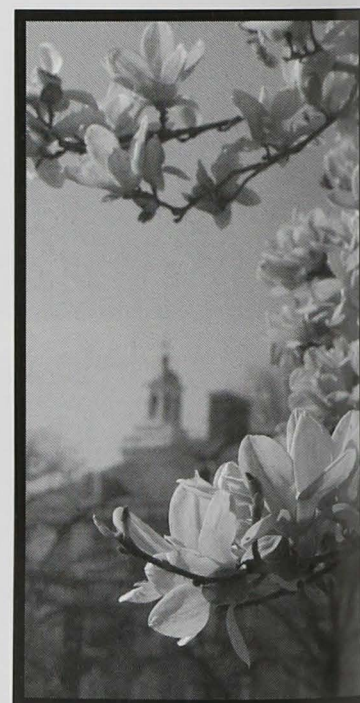

Many JHU students found themselves feeling like kids again as they experienced the well known excitement from the announcement of a day off due to the inclement weather!

The 4 Seasons...

Students engage in a variety of activities on the beach, enjoying the gorgeous weather and sunshine!

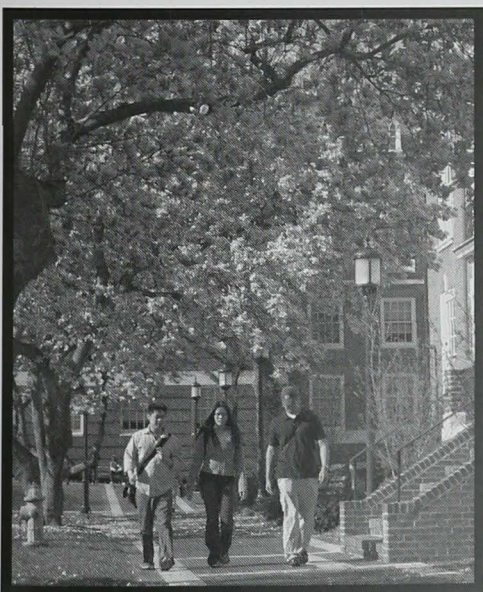

The Hopkins campus is known for its beauty year round, but the breathtaking sight of JHU is one to be captured forever during the blossoming of the cherry blossoms.

Throughout the year, the changing

Isabel was one weather event that no one will soon be forgetting. The hurricane flooded much of Baltimore and caused power outages and great damage that was evident throughout not only our city but much of the east coast.

Despite much violent weather this year, we also experienced some beautiful days that created memories as strong and permanent as those such as hurricane Isabel.

seasons brought weather of all kinds...

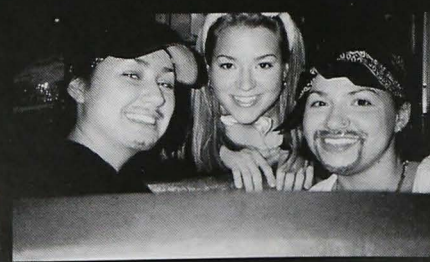

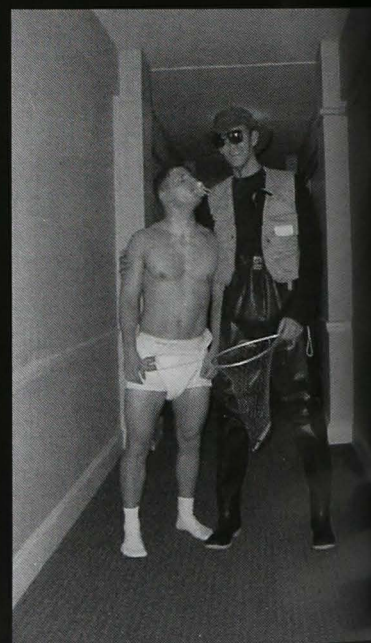

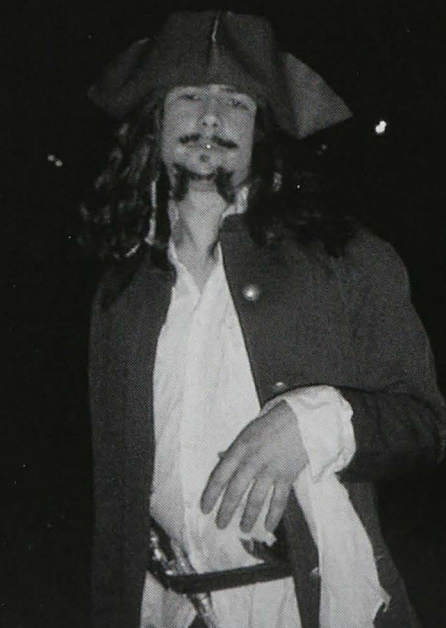

Halloween

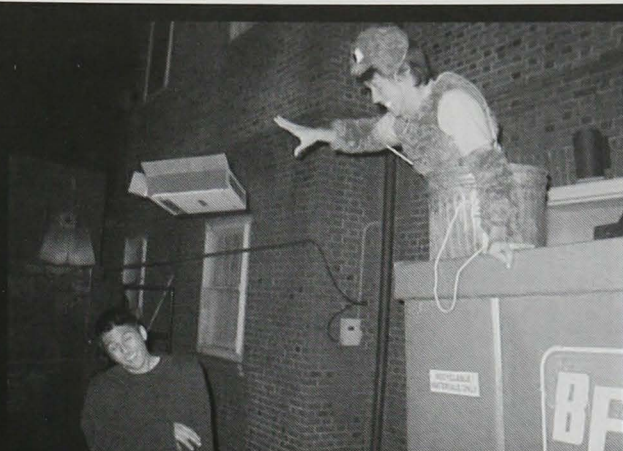

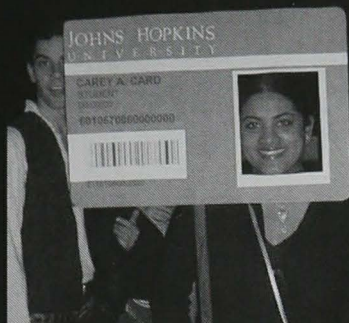

The fun seems endless as Hopkins students enjoy being kids again for the night!

The cold weather didn't stop the creativity of the costumes!

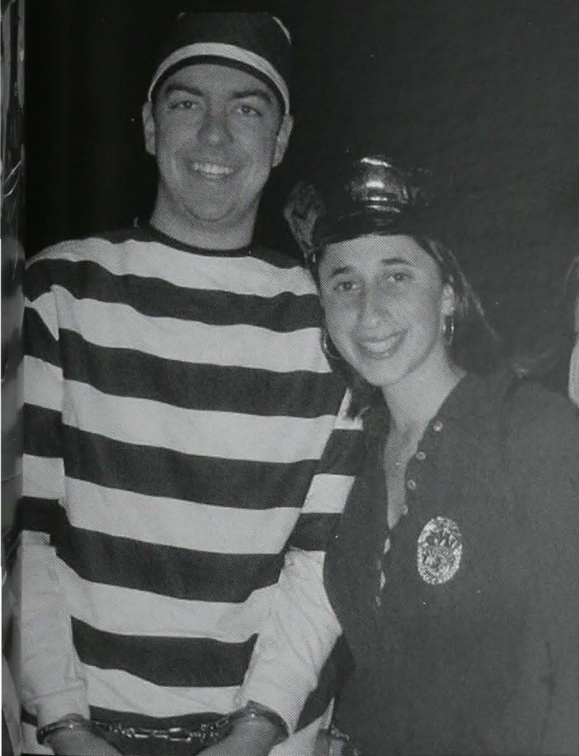

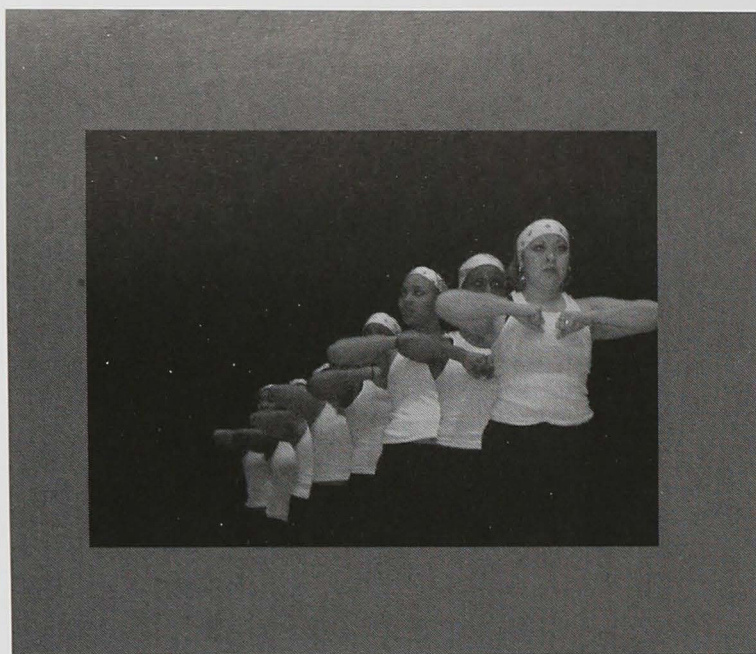

Fells Point was the happening place on this Halloween night!

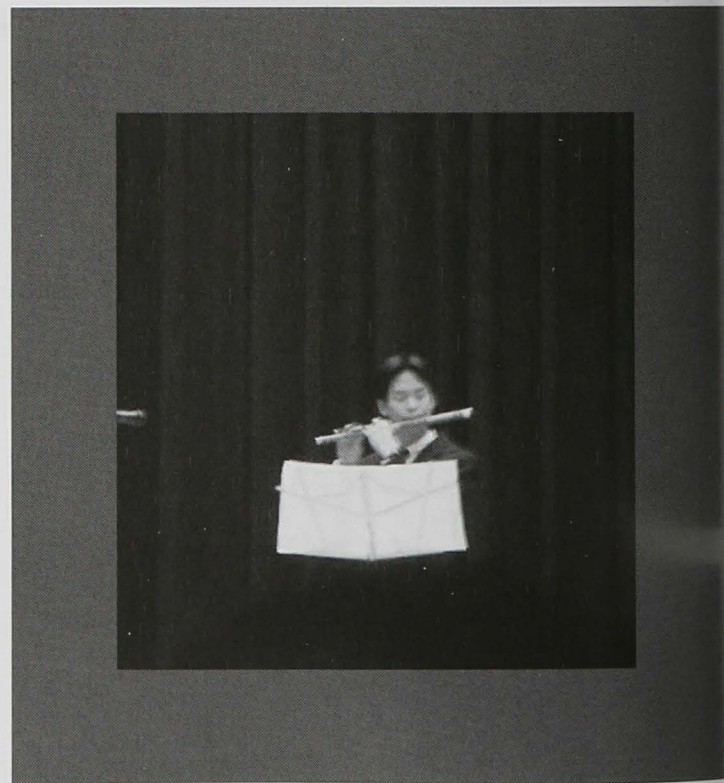

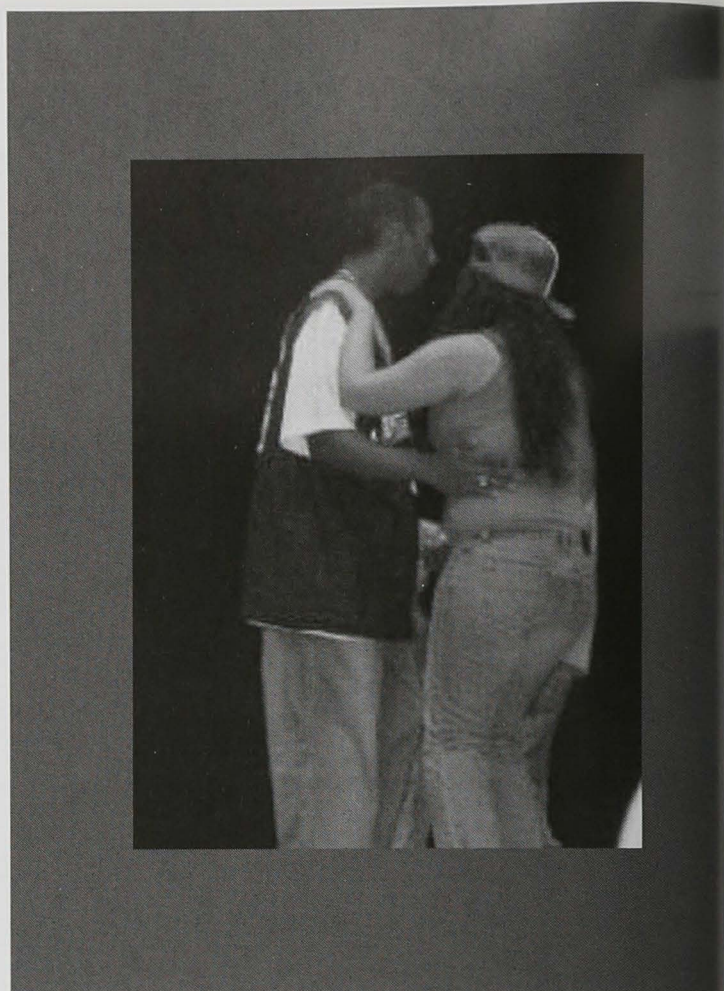

Talk about some crazy costumes!

Some matched their costumes with groups while others went single!

Hard work and serious dedication were clearly prevalent during this celebration of ethnicity and diversity as the performances marveled the audiences.

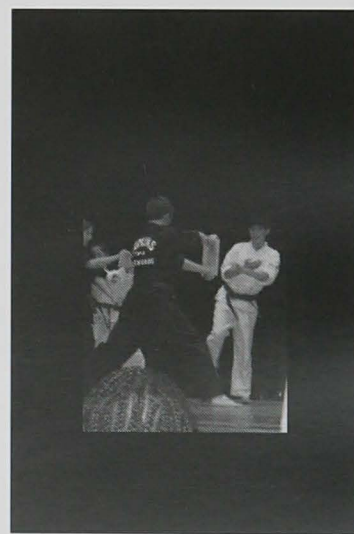

Talent was obvious throughout CultureFest and was displayed through individual and group performances.

CultureFest 2003

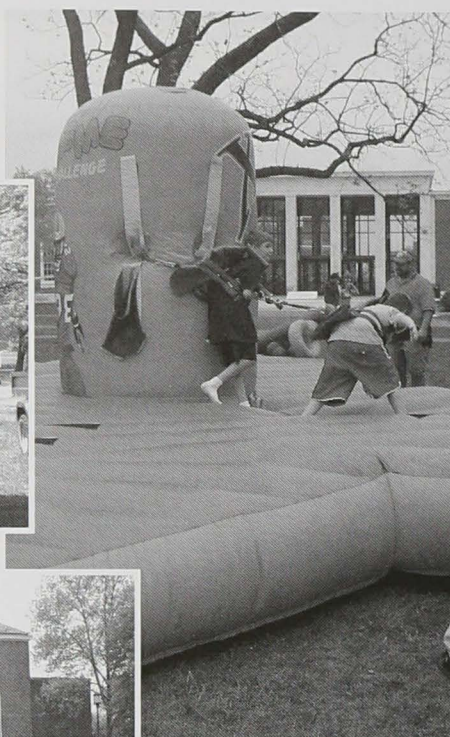

Hopkins 2003 CultureFest was an outrageous display of the diversity that makes our school unique and well-rounded. Participants and audience alike showed pride in their school and in their heritage.

Many of the performances at CultureFest were musical pieces that showed off the backgrounds and cultures of the students.

Volunteers helped to keep the fair clean as they collected trash and made sure everything was neat and tidy!

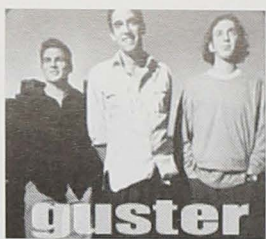

Shopping, games, and food were enjoyed by all at Spring Fair 2004. It was one successful weekend!

Music was all around as many bands played and entertained the audience. All the performers were a huge hit, including the mayor's band!

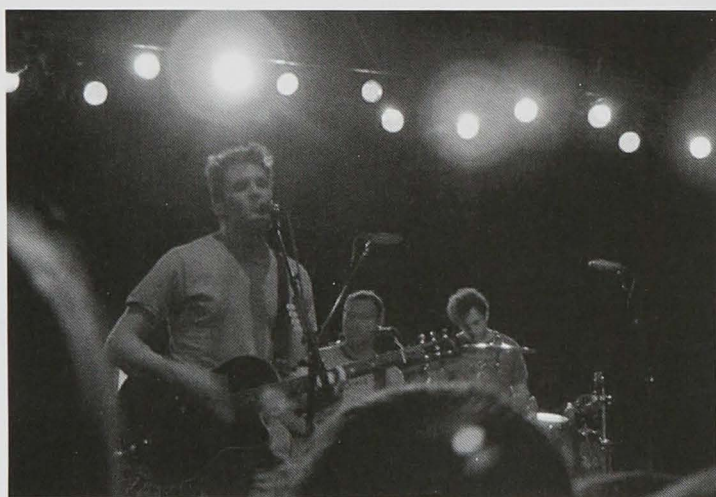

Spring Fair

This year's Spring Fair was a huge success! From the shopping, to the rides, and especially the food, everyone involved had a spectacular time! Thanks to dedicated staff and volunteers, the weekend was unforgettable!

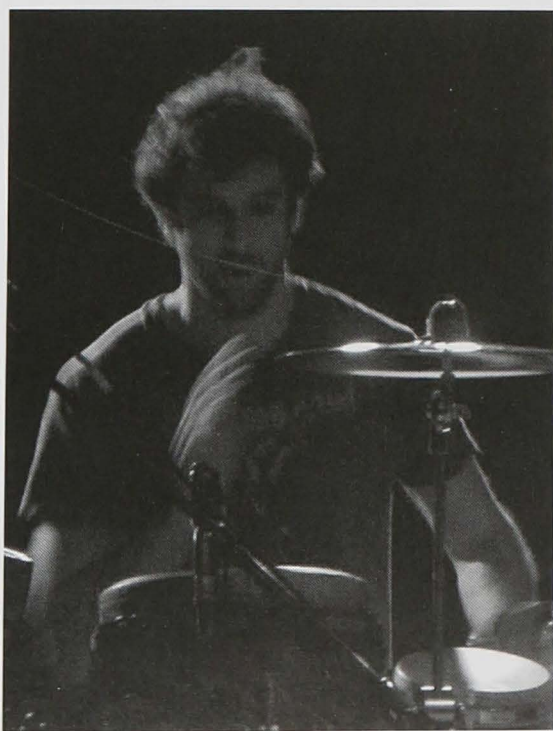

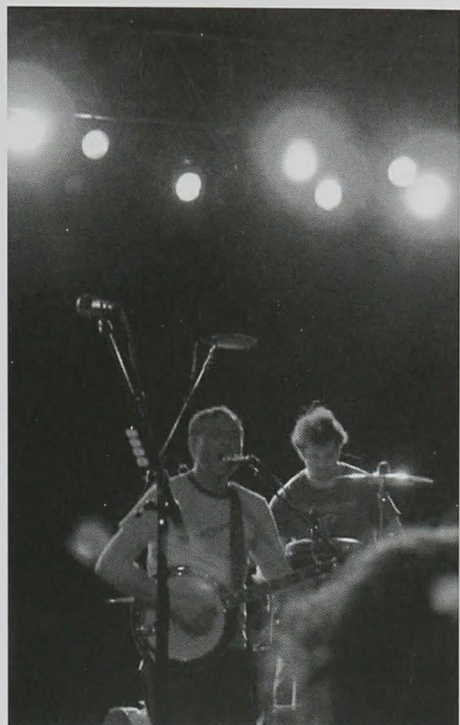

guster concert

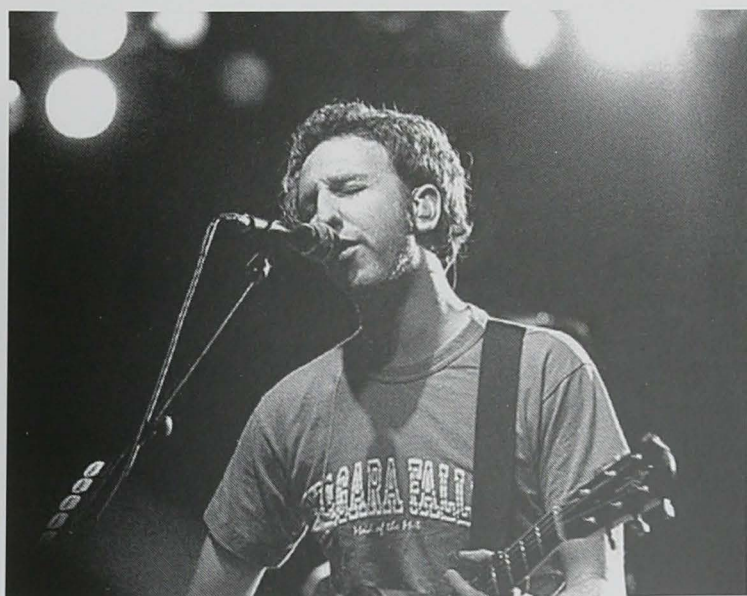

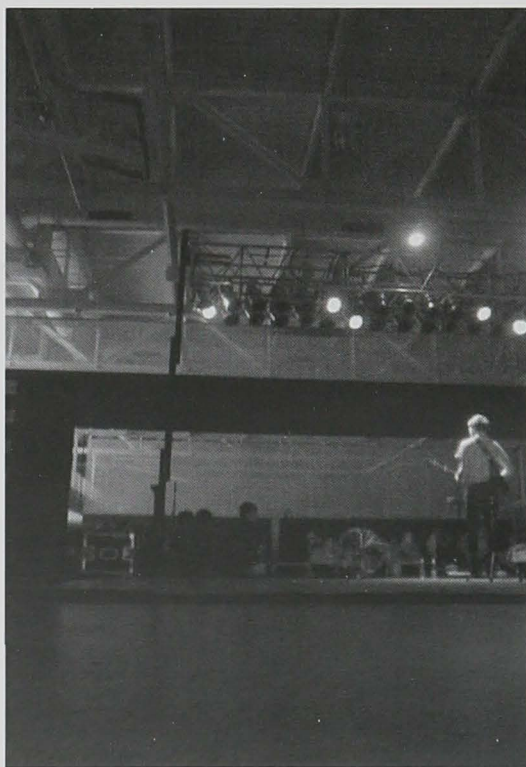

Opening for Guster was The Bees. Their performance revved the crowd, acting as an impetus for excitement and fun for the whole night!

Cheering, screaming, and singing from the crowd was all audible during the concert. It was obvious that everyone involved was having a wonderful time!

Guster's performance amazed much of the audience. The group proved their musical talent and picked up many new fans in the process!

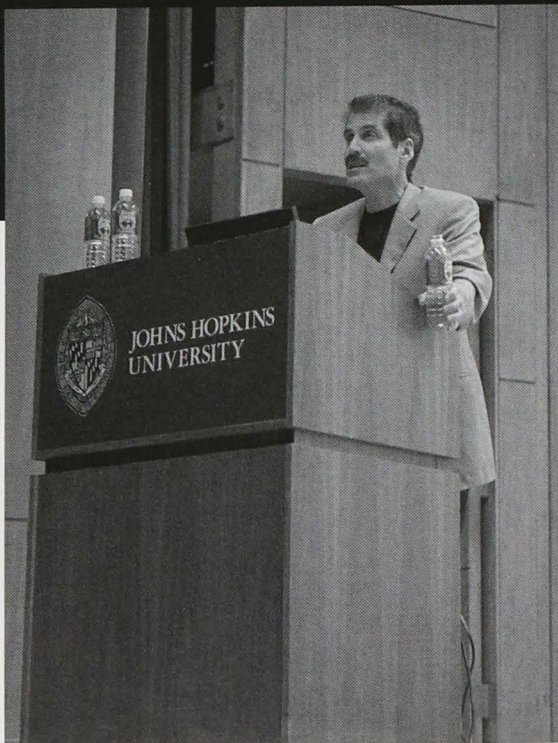

Ann Coulter

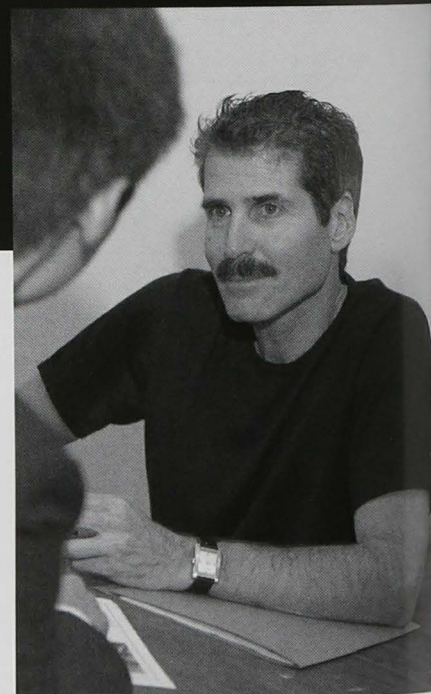

Accomplished author and political analyst Ann Coulter shares her opinions and personal experiences during her Symposium speech.

John Stossel

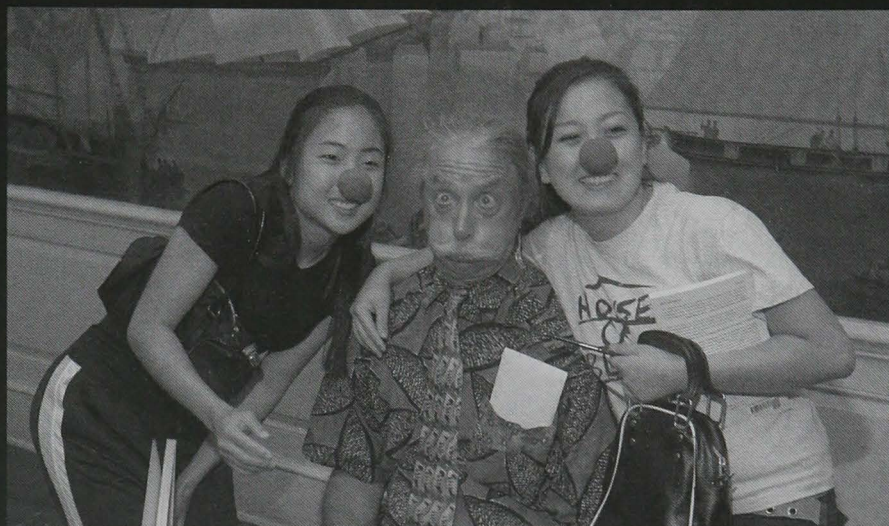

Investigative reporter John Stossel is renowned for his incredible success in his field. The audience was fascinated by his talk and shared stories.

Patch Adams

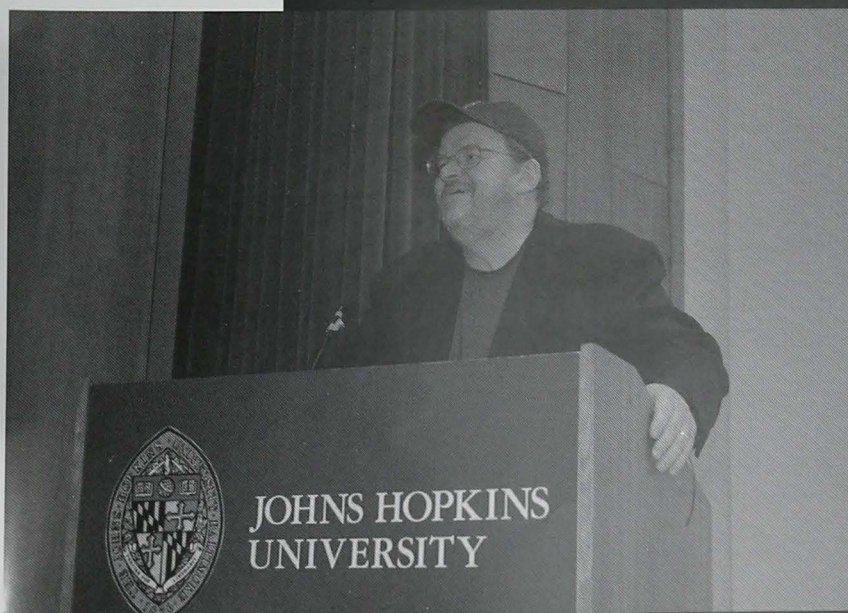

The famous Patch Adams uses his old methods to make the audience smile as one of this year's Symposium speakers.

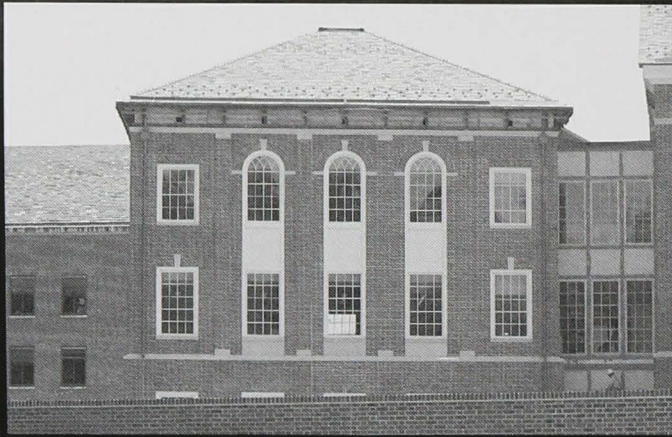

Many were inspired by the self-less and lighthearted Patch Adams and Hopkins' was honored to have him as a guest speaker.

Michael Moore

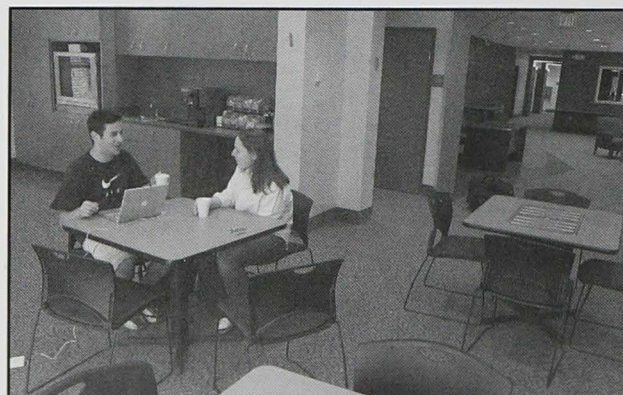

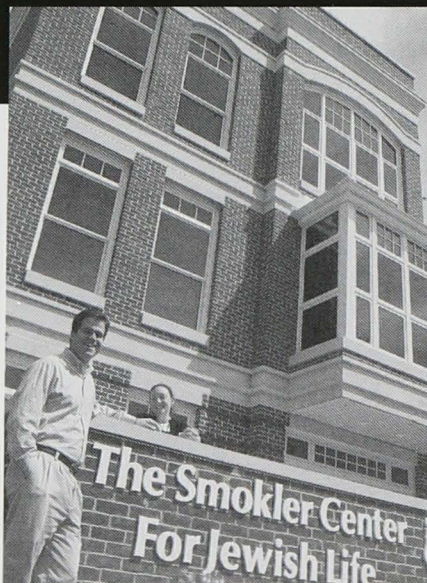

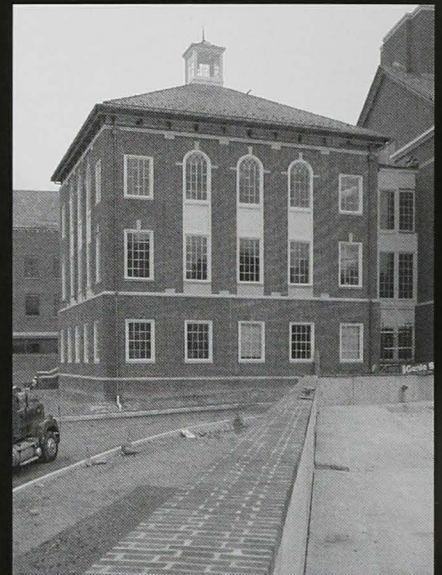

Known for his controversial political statements and expression of opinions, Michael Moore was a popular speaker among those who agree and disagree with his viewpoints.

New Additions

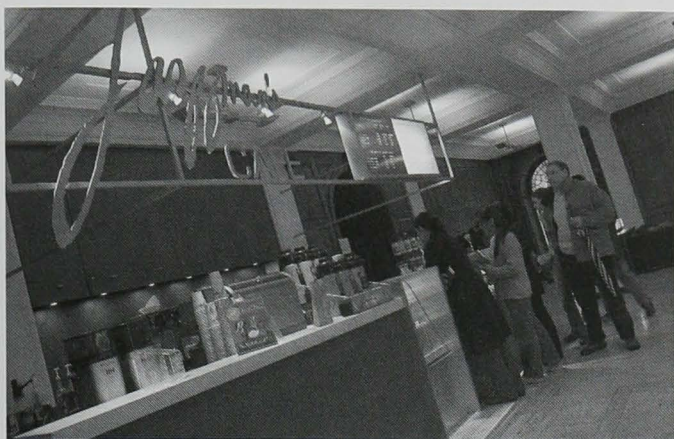

The New Chemistry Building

Although not as trendy as the new coffee bar, this gorgeous educational facility adds to the academic abilities and the architectural character of Johns Hopkins.

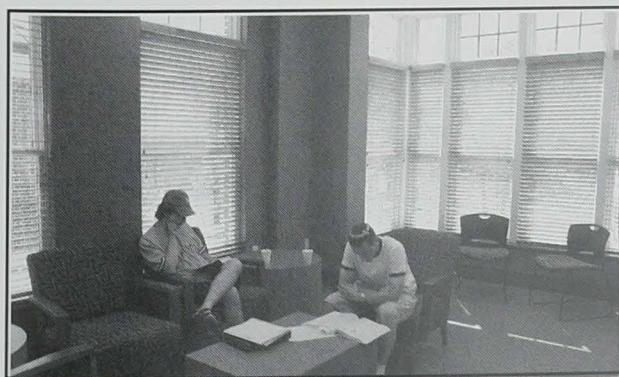

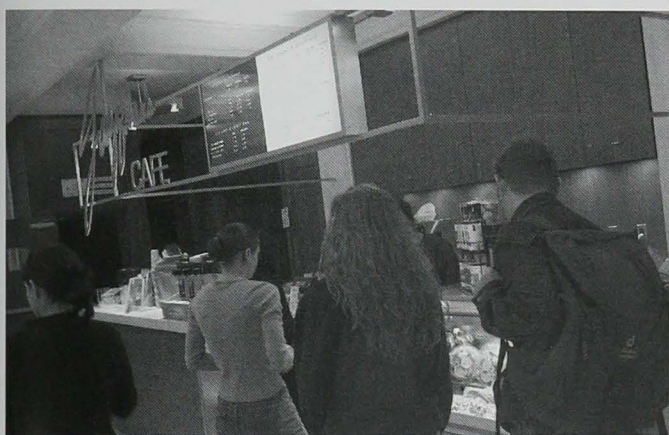

The Smokler Center for Jewish life

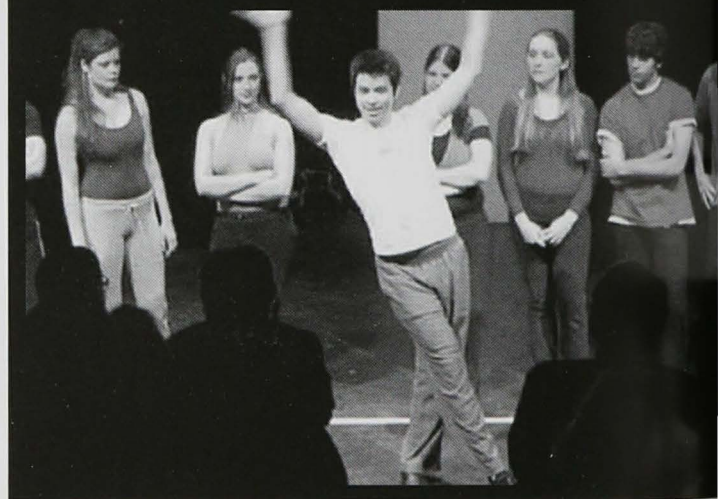

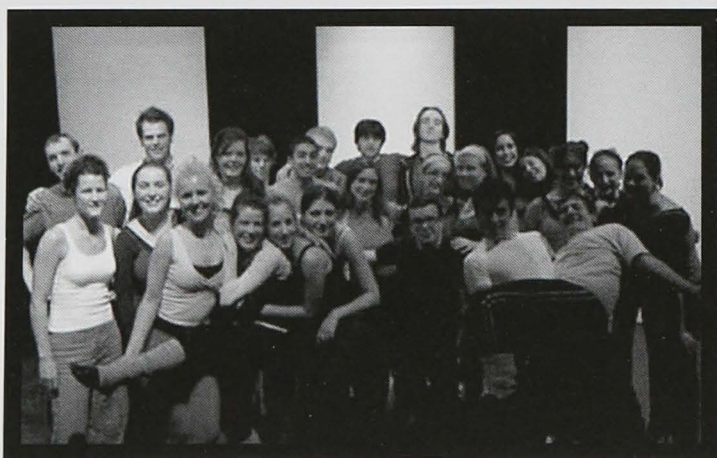

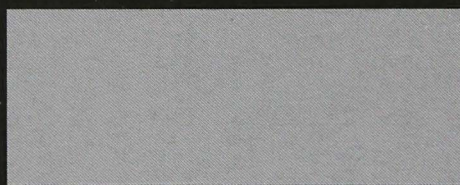

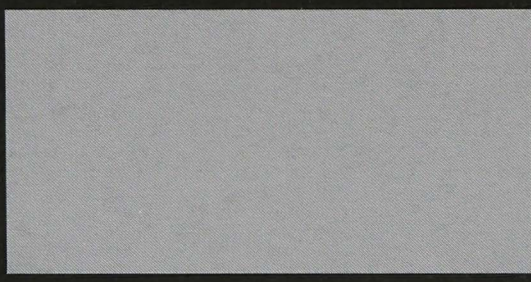

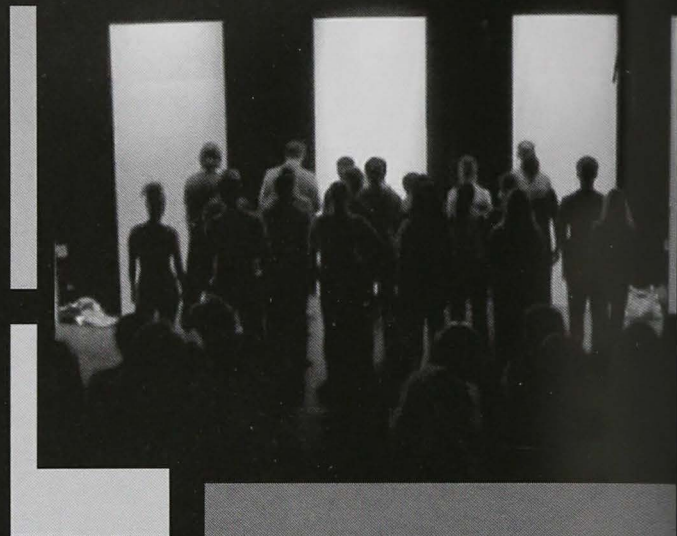

Jazzman's Coffee Bar

A new hotspot for the social minglers on campus, the coffee bar allows for a break from the hard study sessions to purchase a tasty treat or caffeine containing booster!

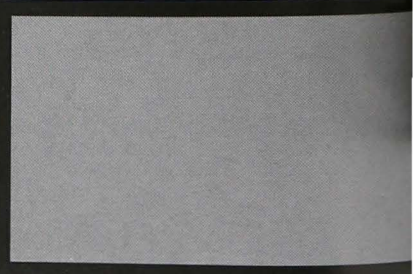

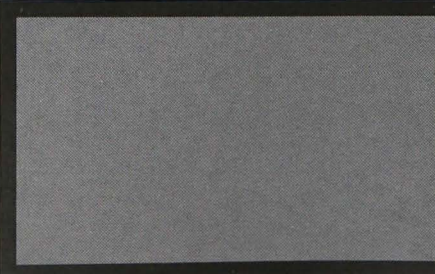

The Smokler Center is a new addition to the JHU campus which provides better opportunities and caters to the Jewish population.

Barnstormers Production: A Chorus Line

A sense of togetherness and unity is omnipresent when the group gathers together.

Even the Barnstormers Production members enjoy themselves alongside the audience during performances and practices.

The theatrical performances of this group are both amusing and brimming with talent and potential. Who knows where these young actors careers will take them!

Humor is often entwined in performance and together with the outstanding abilities of the group the audience is always awed and entertained!

No matter what event the women swam in this year, each and every one of the Blue Jay's women swimmers pushed their physical limits to better their performance and increase the team's overall success.

Through individual challenging, the women competed in a very competitive season.

Peace of Mind For Yourself and Those You Love.

FUNERAL PRE-PLANNING SERVICE

By caring enough to plan ahead, you can make the difficult time after your death easier for those you love...and ensure that your personal wishes will be carried out.

The sorrow and loss experienced at the time of one's death is enough to handle. You don't want to leave your loved ones with the burdensome details, difficult decisions, and financial pressures of arranging your funeral.

Pre-planning and pre-arranging your funeral needs now can ease the burden for your loved ones at a time of great stress and grief, and allow you to make wise choices, and even determine the cost, without pressure and confusion.

Joseph L. Russ Funeral Home will be pleased to send you more information on pre-planning.
