Discover the secluded_taupe of southern France, a region of Languedoc-Roussillon, Midi-Pyrenees, and Aquitaine. It is the largest and most populated region of France, with a population of over 10 million people. The region is known for its picturesque landscapes, wine regions, and history. It is also known for its history and culture, with many famous literary figures hailing from the region, including d'Artagnan, the hero of Alexandre Dumas' novel "The Three Musketeers." Two of the world's most historic and beautiful towns are located within this region: Carcassonne, a medieval walled city, and Toulouse, the capital city of the region.

The romance with rustic and rural Gascony has even made its way into classic French literature; two of the world's most famous literary rogues — d'Artagnan, hero of Alexandre Dumas' novel "The Three Musketeers," and the villainous Milady de Winter — hail from this region. The region is also known for its world-famous food and drink, including Armagnac brandy, which was first produced in the region in the 17th century. The region is also known for its wine, with many vineyards located in the region. Bordeaux, the region's most famous wine-producing area, is known for its red wines, including the famous Saint-Émilion and Pomerol regions.

To discover the celebrated heritage of southwest France during a journey through the storied sites featured on this program, you will visit Château Comtal, an excellent example of a medieval fortress, and Saint-Nazaire Basilica, home to some of the most beautiful stained glass from the Middle Ages. You will also visit Fources, one of the most historic and beautiful towns in France. The walled city also is the largest fortress in the world, and is a major tourist attraction. The canal also advanced engineering and construction techniques, and was the largest civil works endeavor in the world at the time. The canal was also one of the most important trade routes in Europe, and was used to transport goods and resources across the region. It was at once a major trade route and an engineering marvel. Visit Fources, one of the world's most historic and beautiful towns, and enjoy dinner as the world floats by.
